CPA Division Membership

CPA divisions are a great opportunity to become involved in the statewide development of psychology. Each division concentrates on a different aspect of Psychology and strives to recognize the diversity of the field.

Division I Clinical and Professional Practice

Division I represents clinical psychologists and independent practitioners. Efforts focus on ensuring parity for psychologists with other health professionals and expanding areas of service delivery. Benefits include advocacy programs, coordination with CPA's statewide grassroots legislative network, publications and legal assistance.

Division II Education and Training in Psychology

Division II works is to identify and to act on issues affecting the graduate education, practicum, internship and postdoctoral training of psychologists in California. To this aim, the Division (1) monitors proposed legislation and regulations affecting the education, training, and licensure of Psychologists in California and provides commentary to the Board of Psychology and other professional and governmental agencies as appropriate; (2) disseminates information and hosts conferences on issues relevant to education and training; and (3) provides leadership within the education and training community and represents that constituency's interests and opinions within CPA and other organizations. The Division operates under the direction of a Board of Directors and works in a manner consistent with the Mission of the California Psychological Association.
